Biographical Note

Edith Howard Gardner was born on May 1, 1889, to Fred L. Gardner and Mary S. Gardner. Edith was the oldest of four children and resided in Dennysville, Maine with her family until 1906. Edith left to attend Abbott Academy in Andover, Massachusetts and returned to Dennysville in 1909 after completing her schooling. While at Abbott Academy she studied the violin, which she continued to pursue throughout her life by teaching the violin and participating in recitals.

After meeting George H. Merriam III, Edith and George married, August 18, 1921. Edith resided in Worcester, Massachusetts with George until his death in 1944. Edith and George had one son, George H. Merriam IV, born May, 17, 1922. After her husband, George, died, Edith moved back to Maine and married a friend of both hers and George, Ray Tobey, on June 22, 1948. Edith and Ray resided at the Pine Cone Farm, in Fairfield, Maine. Edith passed away in Waterville, Maine following a long illness on July 24, 1975.

Historical Note

In 1871 A.L.R. Gardner began operating a general store in Dennysville, Maine, with the assistance of two of his four sons, Edwin R. and Fred L. In addition to handling the usual merchandise of a country store, the Gardners were dealers of coal, grain, stoves, shingles (pine, spruce, and cedar), and farm implements, as well as crockery, agateware, and even fine Austrian china. After the settling of A.L.R. Gardner's estate in 1902, the A.L.R. Gardner Company was formed with Edwin R. Gardner serving as treasurer, clerk, and manager; Fred L. Gardner, president; and the rest of the family, directors. During 1909-1910 Gardner's store was extensively remodeled. After the death of Edwin Gardner in 1918, Fred L. Gardner became clerk, treasurer, and manager, and his brother, Charles, served as president. During later years Fred L.'s son, Louis, became involved in the store business, which he carried on after his father's death in 1944. The store eventually was closed, and the building was razed in 1961.

Scope and Contents

The Edith Gardner and Family Papers, 1852-1981, are primarily about Edith Gardner but also includes other family members' papers. Edith was a student at the Abbott Academy, in Andover, Massachusetts, and was married to George H. Merriam III and then Ray Tobey. Edith was from Dennysville, Maine and lived in Worcester, Massachusetts during her marriage to George H. Merriam III. This collection includes diaries, correspondence, photographs and financial records that follow the Gardner family of Dennysville, Maine from 1852-1981 and provides a glimpse into a Northeastern Maine family during this era. Additional items of interest include business records for the A.L.R. Gardner Co., the sheet music from the Dennysville Brass Band and documents and a Victory Medal from Ray Tobey's service in the Army during World War I.

Arrangement

There was no coherent organization of the Edith Gardner and Family Papers when they arrived at the Raymond H. Fogler Library Special Collections Department. They have been arranged in series based on their document type: Correspondence and Personal Papers, Diaries, Photographs and Scrapbooks, A.L.R. Gardner Co. Records, Dennysville Brass Band Papers, and Miscellaneous.

This collection is arranged in six series with subseries: I. Correspondence and Personal Papers, II. Diaries, III. Photographs and Scrapbooks, IV. A.L.R. Gardner Co. Papers, V. Dennysville Brass Band Papers, and VI. Miscellaneous.

Series I is divided into five subseries: 1. Edith Gardner, 2. George Merriam III, 3. Ray Tobey, 4. Geroge Merriam IV, 5. Family. Series II is divided into four subseries: 1. Fred L. Gardner Diaries, 2. Edith Gardner Diaries, 3. George Merriam III Diaries, 4. Family Diaries. Series III is divided into seven subseries: 1. Gardner Family Photographs, 2. Merriam Family Photographs, 3. Tobey Family Photographs, 4. Memory books, 5. Autographs Books, 6. Guest Books, 7. Miscellaneous.
